We create learning experiences that employees love

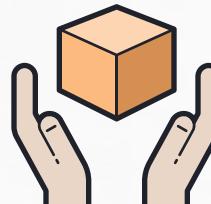

Employees need access to learning opportunities, performance support, upskilling, cross-training, and professional development to succeed.

Effective training meets your employees where they are and keeps them engaged in the learning process. That means making learning interesting, applicable, and even fun. Whatever your employee or external training needs, we can create effective trainings that work for your people and your business.

We work as part of your team

Working as a seamless extension of your team lets us develop a deep understanding of your needs and culture. We excel at co-creating custom learning experiences tailored to your unique situation.

Built for the way you work

Our flexible development models make it easy to uplevel your training no matter your objective or budget. Here are a few of the ways we can help:

- Create custom courses start-to-finish
- Provide consultants to help you plan and launch new training initiatives
- Leverage your existing content to maximize your budget
- Provide you with source files so you can update your training later

Backed by science

Our learning experiences are rooted in cutting-edge research into how the human brain works and learns. This allows us to:

- Leverage 14 years of corporate learning experience
- Utilize location-aware technology
- Pilot new learning technologies

Good training = good business

Here's what you should expect to see from your employees with the help of engaging training that really applies to their work:

- Better retention of key concepts
- New skills being applied, improving quality & efficiency
- Increased job satisfaction thanks to professional development
- Better decision making and problem solving, throughout your organization

Our partners

We work with Fortune 500 companies, small businesses, government agencies, nonprofits and everything in between. Our flexible approach helps us develop the right training for any organization.

"The biggest surprise was how quickly EdgePoint was able to realize our vision and develop a large amount of training under tight timelines. I have been amazed."

"EdgePoint was instrumental in rolling out in-store eLearning for the first time in our history. We quickly developed a co-development working relationship with EdgePoint as an extension of our internal team."

"EdgePoint's consultative approach helped guide us in developing a training program that resulted in standardized training across all of our sites."
